I use the assembly UnityEngine.UI to create UI elements in a game. The thing is, I have a library project and an empty solution project, and in both projects a copy of UnityEngine.UI, and it seems like the difference between these two is this (both projects have a copy of UnityEngine.UI): Library project uses UnityEngine.UI.dll, which contains reference to UnityEngine.dll and other Unity related stuff. Empty project uses UnityEngine.UI.dll, which contains only reference to UnityEngine.dll. So why these two use different dlls? How can I get one dll for both? A: Just like I pointed out in my comment, UnityEngine.UI has dependencies to UnityEngine.dll. While UnityEngine.dll is a public reference assembly that is installed as part of Unity, UnityEngine.UI is a private assembly built only in your app. So in an app that references UnityEngine.UI, the application would only have references to UnityEngine.UI, UnityEngine.dll (used for unity engine integration) and whatever other private assemblies are part of your Unity project. Your second example is an app that

Province, Pakistan. Chronic hepatitis E is a major cause of hepatic diseases in Pakistan. The objective of this study was to estimate seroprevalence of hepatitis E virus in thalassemia patients in Pakistan and to identify the risk factors associated with the infection. This cross-sectional study was conducted from April 2011 to July 2011. Study participants were recruited from a tertiary care hospital of Punjab,

Pakistan. History of exposure to risk factors was recorded along with analysis of hematological and biochemical parameters. A total of 194 sera samples were included. Among the study subjects, 62% had a history of blood transfusion and were exposed to risk factors for hepatitis E. The seroprevalence of anti-hepatitis E virus (HEV) antibodies was found to be 17.9%. The mean age of seronegative subjects was significantly higher than that of the seropositive ones (21.8 years vs. 9.3 years;  $p = 0.0001$ ). Females were more susceptible to hepatitis E than males (19% vs. 11.7%;  $p = 0.005$ ). Higher IgM antibody titre was observed in the younger age group. Hepatitis

E IgM antibody titre > 1000 IU/mL predicted hepatitis E virus infection with a sensitivity of 83.3% and a specificity of 87.3% (AUC = 0.89; p Flashing Sony Mavica camera on new Pentax SMC- e79caf774b
